(CT:AQM-1; 11-29-2005)

- a. The Federal Acquisition Reform Act requires agencies to set up career paths for acquisition personnel in terms of education, training, experience, and assignments needed for career progression to the most senior acquisition positions. The law also establishes requirements for completion of coursework and on-the-job training and requires employees to maintain current skill levels through training, academic programs, or self-development activities.
- b. Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) Policy Letter 92-3, paragraphs 4a through 4c, implemented in section 1.603-1 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), requires the Procurement Executive to establish training requirements for acquisition personnel. Scheduled competency-based training must follow the curriculum established by the Federal Acquisition Institute (FAI) to the maximum extent practicable.
